Alumni Spotlight - Elizabeth Kukla
St. Andrew's Class of 2006

St. Andrew's Class of 2006 alumna Elizabeth Kukla writes about being a NOLA girl from afar in "Growing Pains," a weekly column at NolaVie, an online publication with content that focuses on lifestyles and happenings in New Orleans.

Elizabeth's bio from NolaVie:

A native New Orleanian currently studying Engineering at the University of Virginia, Elizabeth misses using the artistic side of her brain while studying fun(?) things like Differential Equations at school; she is middle brained, after all. A passionate runner, she is active in both the running communities in Virginia and New Orleans. Living apart from New Orleans has given her a new appreciation for the city that raised her, as she realizes there truly is no place to grow up like NOLA, no place to live like NOLA, no place like NOLA. Period.
